

MENTORS, MAVENS & MAGI

GAINING WISDOM THROUGH OTHERS

Wine and Cheese Reception & Panel Discussion

Thursday, February 26th, 2009 4:30–6:30pm

Building a reputation as a successful leader involves ensuring that you have cultivated relationships both inside and outside of the organization. How do successful leaders develop relationships so that they can navigate political issues, influence on critical issues and achieve the best results? The "Belief Factor" was identified in the success of female leaders in a study conducted by Leibham & Company in 2006 in Calgary. As women talked about using their network and developing relationships with key individuals, they talked about the importance of mentors.

The Belief Factor has to do with having a relationship with someone who had expectations of her beyond her current scope, someone who believed in her capabilities, someone who gave her an opportunity because he believed that she had the ability to take on the challenge, someone who was prepared to provide guidance. As one woman said: "He made me believe in myself".

Mentors, Mavens & Magi: Gaining Wisdom Through Others will explore the power of mentoring and relationships that facilitate career growth. In a dynamic panel including an expert on mentoring, we will examine the role of mentors in the lives of successful leaders – how mentors impacted their careers, how they mentor others and how mentoring works.

Join us on Thursday, February 26 from 4:30 to 6:30 for a wine & cheese networking reception and panel discussion with:

Steve Laut – President and COO of Canadian Natural Resources Limited

Susan Riddell Rose – President and CEO of Paramount Energy Trust

Lorraine Mitchelmore – Vice President of Exploration, Americas North of Shell Canada
